

Can't afford to be off work with backpain?

THERE is a growing trend for working people to turn to Chiropractic as the first stop for their health problems. Their main priority is to get their problems sorted properly and fast so they can get back to work as soon as possible. BritChiro, one of the UK's leading providers of Chiropractic healthcare has branches in New Milton and Westbourne's town centres. Patients praise the refreshing approach they have to health and service. Despite the large number of patients seeking their care, they have a policy of aiming to see patients as soon as possible so that these patients can get back on track and back to work & play.

The expertise and service that the Doctors of Chiropractic give is based on accurately diagnosing the joints which are not functioning correctly and which are therefore causing inflammation and pressure onto nerve fibres. These specific joints are then adjusted by hand in exactly the right direction whereby proper movement and function is restored. The cause of the inflammation and pressure onto nerve fibres has thereby been corrected. 'Attempting to solve such problems with anti-inflammatory drugs is like trying to stop a running tap only by scooping away the water' says Dr Westergaard.

The majority of health problems we encounter in a lifetime are biomechanical, meaning dysfunction of our frame, be it in the spine or arms and legs. BritChiro have set their prices at an affordable level. An examination is £40 and each treatment costs £30. Patients who are self-employed doing very physical work, are usually successful in gaining tax relief from the costs of treatment.

grounds man he is always physically using his body, sometimes to the limit, and since first consulting the clinic for back problems several years ago, he now uses it as a first stop for his healthcare. 'I had always thought Chiropractors just treated backs but they were also excellent at sorting out my shoulder and arm when I recently overdid the chainsaw work. The Doctors are great. It doesn't matter who you see, the treatment is always efficient and all of the doctors are very friendly. I was quickly so impressed I sent my wife, Jenny, to BritChiro and she has also had good results from the treatment after experiencing neck pain following a traffic accident'.

All clinics are beautifully fitted out with full X-ray facilities. The Westbourne clinic is located in the
